

Bahman Adlou | bza0058@auburn.edu

I plan to attend the American Society of Biomechanics' conference. I have been accepted as a presenter, so I will be presenting our study findings at my dedicated poster-presentation session.

To attend, registration is required and the cost at this time is $450 for students without membership, or $400 with student membership. A student membership is $30 if accepted, so it will be financially beneficial if I register for the conference as a student member ($430 with membership versus $450 without the membership). The documents attached to this file are for costs of attendance as a student member.

Given the location of the conference, I intend to drive to the location. From AU Kinesiology building to the convention center is 322 miles (one-way).

I included a sample bill of the stay only for the dates of the conference from a recommended lodging hotel by the conference itself. The sample bill for reservation (if reserved today) is included.

14 July 2023