Dear Kathryn,

Congratulations! On behalf of the NCTM 2023 Washington, D.C. Annual Meeting & Exposition Program Committee, I am pleased to inform you that your proposal, "Connecting Students to the Community via Culturally Relevant Mathematical Modeling Tasks" has been accepted and moved onto the program. The Washington, D.C. Annual Meeting "Creating Spaces for Change Through Community: It Starts with You" will be held Wednesday, October 25 – Saturday, October 28, 2023. The proposal was accepted with you as the Lead Speaker.

Step 1 by 5/9/2023
Accept or Decline
Accept or decline the invitation to speak at https://www.nctm.org/annualspeaker/ by 5/9/2023. Log-in to the Speaker Ready Room using your NCTM username and password you used at the time of proposal submission.

If you accept this speaking opportunity, please move on to Step #2.

If you decline the opportunity to speak at the Washington, D.C. NCTM Annual Meeting, you do not need to do anything else.

Step 2 by 9/1/2023
Register as a Lead Speaker https://www.nctm.org/annualspeaker/
Speakers should register by September 1st to receive the discounted Annual Meeting speaker fee of $313.

Click the Lead Speaker Registration button and login under lead speaker registration using your nctm.org username. (Co-speakers do not need to accept the speaking invitation and should register through attendee registration).

Please note, it is the Lead Speaker's responsibility to share all conference and presentation information received from NCTM with your co-speakers.

As Lead Speaker, you must complete step 1 (confirming your intent to attend) before May 9, 2023, and step 2 (registering for the Washington, D.C. Annual Meeting) by September 1, 2023, or your presentation will be removed from the program. Before accepting, please confirm you can attend. Be sure to arrange your work leave, substitutes (if applicable), and financial support at this time.

The Speaker Information Page serves as a portal for all information related to speakers. Visit this website regularly for information regarding co-speakers, reimbursement policies, onsite procedures, and more. https://www.nctm.org/annualspeaker/

Since your proposal was accepted with you as the Lead Speaker, if you are unable to attend the Washington, D.C. Annual Meeting, please email ConferencesDept@nctm.org to let us know. Please do not send a replacement lead speaker in your place.

Your generous sharing of ideas and materials will provide rewarding professional development experiences for attendees at the NCTM 2023 Annual Meeting & Exposition in Washington, D.C.

Thank you for your support of this NCTM program! I look forward to your presentation.

Sincerely,
Carl Oliver,
Washington, D.C. Program Chair
