The chapters included in this book were selected from papers presented on 25–27 March 2001 in Atlanta, Georgia, at a conference titled Global Initiatives and Public Policies: First International Conference on Private Forestry in the 21st Century. The conference was the first major outreach activity of Auburn University's Forest Policy Centre. Many people deserve credit for contributing to the establishment of the Forest Policy Centre and the success of the conference. In particular, about a decade ago, Vaughn Stough and Emmett Thompson envisioned a programme of forest policy research that would focus on the unique circumstances facing private timberland owners. Through their efforts and the generous contributions of Earl and Sandra Weaver, Hall W. Thompson, Harry E. Murphy, the Landegger Charitable Foundation, International Paper, Resource Management Service, AmSouth Bancorporation, Thompson Tractor Company, the Weyerhaeuser Company Foundation, and others to the Endowment for Excellence in Forest Policy, the Forest Policy Centre was established in 1999.

Over 200 attendees from 20 countries contributed approximately 100 papers at the conference. It was difficult to select the subset of papers contained in this volume from the many fine pieces of research that were presented. All the papers contained in this volume (other than keynote speeches) were selected following blind peer review and approval by the editors. We would like to thank all contributors to the conference, and particularly the authors of the papers presented here, for their help in the review of manuscripts and in preparing these chapters for publication. Many worthy papers had to be left out of the book due to thematic and space limitations.

The planning of the conference and organization of this book required the contributions of many individuals including the members and adjunct members of the Forest Policy Centre (Conner Bailey, Benjamin Cashore, Mark Dubois, David Laband, Ken Muehlenfeld, John Schelhas, Lawrence Teeter, Robert Tufts and Daowei Zhang) and members of the FPC Advisory Committee (James Granskog, John Heissenbuttel, Stephen Newton, Chris Oberholster and Charles Tarver). Special thanks go to our conference keynote speakers, Clark S. Binkley, Jagmohan Maini, George H. Weyerhaeuser, Jr and Birger Solberg, and to our regional reviewers (of initial abstracts), William Bentley, Karen Potter-Witter and John Bliss. Many thanks to Marjorie Teeter for handling the organizational aspects of the conference in a manner that kept attendees happy and the conference running smoothly. We would also like to thank Maksym Polyakov, John Hogland and Ulrike Bauer from the School of Forestry and Wildlife Sciences, Auburn University, for their help as facilitators before, during, and after the conference. Organization of the peer review process was aided substantially by Anthony Stewart and Jamie Lawson. Finally, we would like to thank the members of SOFEW (Southern Forest Economics workers) for agreeing to schedule this conference in conjunction with their annual meeting in order to maximize attendance at both meetings.

The Forest Policy Centre also appreciates the contributions of our conference co-sponsors including the School of Forestry and Wildlife Sciences and the Center for Forest Sustainability at Auburn University, the Society of American Foresters, the International Union of Forestry Research Organizations,

Weyerhaeuser Company Foundation, Westvaco Corporation, and Willamette Industries, Inc. A successful conference and publication of this volume would not have been possible without their support. Finally, the editors thank Tim Hardwick of CABI Publishing for giving us the opportunity to publish this book.
