

Information on Rules Committee Nominees

Evert Duin is an associate professor in the Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry. He has been a faculty member at Auburn since 2002. His research is in the fields of biochemistry and bioinorganic chemistry; understanding the properties and function of metalloenzymes involved isoprene synthesis, and in specific steps in the global methane and nitrogen cycles. He has served as a University Senator since 2009.

Andrew J. McLelland has been on the faculty at Auburn University since 2002 and is an Associate Professor in the School of Accountancy. His research focuses on governmental audit and financial accounting issues. Andrew teaches intermediate accounting and financial statement analysis and valuation. He is currently a University Senator and serves on the Core Curriculum and General Education Committee; he has also served on the College of Business Research Committee and the School of Accountancy Faculty Committee.