

Angela I. Calderón, PhD is an Associate Professor in the Department of Drug Discovery and Development, Harrison School of Pharmacy, Auburn University. She received her Ph.D. in Pharmacognosy from the University of Lausanne, Lausanne, Switzerland under the guidance of Prof. Kurt Hostettmann (2002). Then, she conducted her postdoctorate at Prof. Richard B. van Breemen's laboratory at the University of Illinois at Chicago. She joined the faculty at Auburn University School of Pharmacy as an Assistant Professor in August 2008. Dr. Calderón specializes in natural drug products research, specifically applications of mass spectrometry to natural products drug discovery for infectious diseases and quality and safety assessment of botanical dietary supplements. Her research program has been funded by botanical dietary supplement industry.

Jingjing Qian, PhD is an Associate Professor at the Department of Health Outcomes Research and Policy, Harrison School of Pharmacy. She obtained a PhD in Pharmacoepidemiology at the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy in 2012 and became a faculty member at Auburn University since then. Her research interest focuses on post-marketing surveillance of pharmaceutical products and drug safety. Dr. Qian's research program has been funded by the U.S. Food and Drug Administrative (FDA) and American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy (AACCP).